Future Skills are competences that allow individuals to solve complex problems in highly emergent contexts of action in a selforganised way and enable them to act (successfully).

In Future; it's highly likely you'll be working in a job that doesn't even exist yet. The world of work is evolving quickly, which means you have to figure out how to prepare for a future job role that's impossible to predict. The year 2020 – Covid-19 has taught us many lessons. Of course, there isn't a crystal ball that can tell us exactly what skills will be needed and what won't be needed. But, we can sum up with few skills :

Cognitive flexibility

The rise of digital technologies means you're going to need to be able to handle the plethora of opportunities and challenges that come with it.

Digital literacy and computational thinking

As the world continues to rely on highly technical and continuously evolving technologies, the need for those with the digital skills to match also increases. We have heard about STEM, SMAC (social, mobile, analytics and cloud), being digitally literate offers capabilities beyond what was once thought possible when it comes to emerging technologies, such as artificial intelligence (AI), machine learning, Internet of Things (IoT), and data science.

Judgement and decision-making

Although robots and automation technology may be better than humans in other ways such as calculations and diagnostic solving, it's still going to be humans that deal with the subjective side of data analytics.

Considering we're on the cusp of the fourth industrial revolution, we're still going to need to have somebody who is able to show the world what numbers mean and their significance.

Emotional and social intelligence

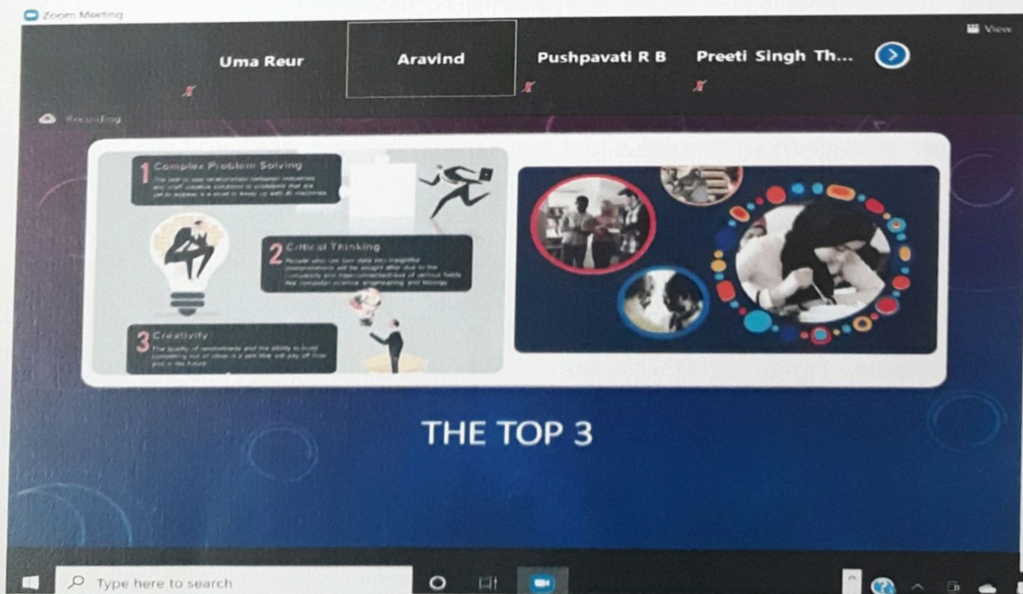

For everything that can be replaced by digital technologies and artificial intelligence, emotional and social intelligence remain uniquely human capabilities.

Creative and innovative mindset

Despite a report by the World Economic Forum in 2018 suggesting robot automation will create more jobs than they displace, you'll still do well to keep on top of your creativity skills and maintain an innovative mindset.

Much like having an excellent sense of social intelligence, natural creativity is something which can't be easily replicated by the latest digital technologies. As long as you can think outside the box, you'll be just fine.

Considering the above factors this webinar was organized to help our students understand the future skills required. Mr. Arvind Muchakhandi, Manager – Delivery, Cognizant Angel Investor, a social worker and an IT Engineer by professional was the resource person for the webinar. He explained in detail with presentation along with videos. It was followed by discussion session, where students actively participated.
