Patent is a form of intellectual property. A patent gives its owner the right to exclude others from making, using, selling, and importing an invention for a limited period of time, usually twenty years. The patent rights are granted in exchange for an enabling public disclosure of the invention. In most countries patent rights fall under civil law and the patent holder needs to sue someone infringing the patent in order to enforce his or her rights. In some industries patents are an essential form of competitive advantage; in others they are irrelevant.

Sir also stressed on rights relating to Intellectual property:

- a) Literary, artistic and scientific works.
- b) Performance of performing artists, phonograms and broadcasts.
- c) Inventions in all fields of human endeavour.
- d) Scientific discoveries.
- e) Industrial designs.
- f) Trade marks, service marks and commercial names and designations

Sir also gave information on the topic Geographical Indications. He said that indications are those which identify goods originating in the territory of a member or a region or locality in the territory, where a given quality, reputation or other characteristic of the goods is essentially attributable to its geographical Origin [Art 22 (1)].

In respect of geographical indications, WTO Members shall provide the legal means for interested parties to prevent.

- The use of any means in the designation or presentation of a goods that indicates or suggests that the good in question originates in a geographical area other than the true place of origin in a manner which misleads the public as to the geographical origin of goods.
- Any use which constitutes an Act or unfair competition within the meaning of Art 10 bits of the pairs convention, 1967 [Art 22 (2)].

Copy Right: Indian Copy Right Act 1957 and Indian Copy Right Rules 1958

- 1) Original library work
- 2) Dramatic work
- 3) Musical work
- 4) Sound recording
- 5) Artistic work

Degree College for Women, Kalaburagi, and Dr. Maheshwari was resource person Assistant Professor, S.S.L Law College, Kalaburagi. Madam gave clear idea about the Patent Law. Patent Law is the branch of intellectual property law that deals with new inventions. Traditional patents protect tangible scientific inventions, such as circuit boards, car , engines, heating coils or zippers.

She also discussed on types of patents.

1. Utility patents: Utility patents are grouped into five categories, a process, a machine ,a manufacture, a composition of matter or an improvement of an existing idea.
2. Design patent: A design patent is granted for product designs –for example, an IKEA chair Keith Haring wallpaper, or a Manol Blahnik shoe. You can even get a design patent for a computer screen icon.
3. Plant Patent: Plant patent protects the owner by keeping other individuals or businesses from creating the type of plant or profiting from the plant for at least 20years from the date of the application.

The topic of third session was TRADE MARK and the resource person was Dr. Jyoti K Assistant Professor, S.S.L. Law College, Kalaburagi, and session was chaired by Dr. Vani Hattarki, Assistant Professor, Department of Commerce and Management, Smt. V. G. A Trade Mark is a visual symbol in the form of a word, a device, or a label applied to articles of commerce with a view to indicate to the purchasing public that they are the goods manufactured or otherwise dealt in by a particular person as distinguished from similar goods manufactured or dealt in by other persons.

A person who sells his goods under a particular Trade Mark acquires a sort of limited exclusive right to use of the mark in relation to those goods. Such a right acquired by use is recognised as a form of property in the Trade Mark. A person can also acquire a similar right over a trade mark not so far used but only proposed to be used, by registering it under Trade Mark Act, 1999.
